MAKING CORONER O'GORMAN FIGURE WITH HIM-JUST NOW.

Elmore Mines Consolidated, With Old Okobojo in the Background President E. M. Jerome Feels That McNutt "Has Played Me for an Elasy Mark."

The public may buy stock in Elmore Mines Consolidated if it wants to. There isn't much to sell, only a matter of 200,000 shares, but it isn't a luxury for all that. A ten dollar note is all that is required for an investment, and for that one can secure five shares at process market prices. It is five shares at present market prices. It is a proposition within the reach of the plain people. William O'Gorman, Jr., one of the Coroners of The Bronx advertises it for sale. Elsie Barr will sell you some if you want it. So, too, will William Howard McNutt, who used to sell Okobojo stock and if you have trouble finding McNutt, why all you have to do is to look up his picture in the remains the remains a distribution of the remains the remai to do is to look up his picture in the rogues' gailery at Police Headquarters and then go down to the offices of the Beekman Advertising Agency at 140 Nassau street general outlines of the plan. These I can't help learning, for there are people here talking about it all the time and I hear it constantly. I think it helps Mr. McNutt, too, for me to explain what I do know. He is so busy, you know. There are so many people to see him. But if you are really interested I will see if Mr. McNutt can spare you a minute or two."

As Miss Elsie stepped behind a partition there was a furious ringing of a telephone bell and a loud voice talking high finance into the receiver. Mr. McNutt would be at liberty in just a minute, said Miss Elsie. Presently she showed the caller into the main presence.

You wish to know about Elmore Consolidated?" said McNutt. "Well, as our circulars say, the company is a consolidation of several Idaho mining companies, about a dozen all told. Every one of them had good properties and the real value of the properties has been greatly increased by the combination. This has rendered possible many economies and has made the business much easier because previously many of these companes had been fighting.

there are no outstanding bonds. There isn't a mortgage on a bit of the property. The company owns everything absolutely. Emore Consolidated isn't like lots of other companies that investors have found heavily mortgaged. If we have found heavily mortgaged. If we wanted to put a mortgage on it we could. We don't. We have simply decided to put on the market 200,000 shares of stock and from the proceeds of the sale build a fifty stamp mill, an electric plant, aerial tramways and in fact, all the latest improvements of modern mining. Then we will do business in great shape."

"Not all of the stock is to be sold, then?" he was asked.

"The company is in a chaotic condition. I have put some money in it and so have some others on representations made by a syndicate headed by William H. McNutt. This syndicate was to raise a certain amount of money by April 1. McNutt hasn't put in a dollar and neither has any one of his associates. If you are thinking of investing any money, my advice to you is don't. I feel that McNutt has played me for an easy mark, but this businessisn't over yet, and I don't intend to be fooled.

"I understand that McNutt has been advertising in some Connecticut papers and has sold quite a little stock. The offices of the company have just been moved from the Broad-Exchange Building to 140 Nassau street. In the first place they were at 61 William street."

"The company," he said, "is a consolidation of the Okobojo Mining Company and the Gluck Mining Company. I first heard of it through William J. Taylor, who told me that he was interested in a syndicate organized for the purpose of developing the mines at Rocky Bar, Idaho. We finally formed an agreement, together with stockholders in the two companies, by which they should be consolidated. It was one of the terms of this agreement that a syndicate consisting of Mr. Taylor, Mr. McNutt and Coroner O'Gorman should raisa $100.000 and that others of us should put in cash or stock in the Gluck company. I soon found out that McNutt was the head of the or stock in the Gluck company. I soon found out that McNutt was the head of the found out that McNutt was the head of the syndicate and looked him up. They have or had 200,000 shares, which are apart from the shares in both companies held in trust. These shares number 400,000 and are not to be released until April 1, 1906, in any event.

"McNutt called n d ma up late on Manday and mines and see what steps ought to be taken to develop them. At present no one in the company is selling stock who is not connected with McNutt's syndicate. I have not even seen one of the circulars they are giving out and know little of the advertising.

Coroner O'Gorman said later in the day:

"If Jerome's been done by McNutt, it's very peculiar, for I saw him to-day and he said nothing about it. On the contrary, I have a letter from him right here regarding a nozzle company we are trying to organize. The Elmore mines is a straight proposition. McNutt is only a shareholder. He has not even a controlling interest nor anything like it. He does belong to the syndicate which is marketing the stock. If Jerome's been done, I've been done." Then Mr. O'Gorman started out to look up Mr. Jerome.

the crew bucked a strong tide all the way up stream. A southwest breeze, blowing at an eight knot gait favored the boat, however. The oarsmen rowed a ciean, steady, stroke at thirty until nearing the finish flag when the speed was increased to thirty-four. All the men in the boat were in good condition when the last mile was reeled off.

"They pulled the last half a great deal better than the first half," remarked the coach at the end of the trial. Coach Wray and Capt. Filley said the time was 22 minutes 23 seconds. Harvard's freshmen arrived at Red Top at 645 o'clock this evening and Coach Boswerth had them on the river fifteen minutes later, giving them a half mile pull up and down the river. The newcomers show more life than any other eight in either of the varsity squads.

Yale's crews had light practise again today hear quarters. The varsity and freshmen had a brush this evening for a mile, and the lumiors made the big crew hustle to keep ahead of them. Coach Stuyvesant Fish has shaken up the freshmen and there are more ahead of them. Coach Suyvesant rish has shaken up the freshmen and there are more changes due. Bigelow at No. 5 and Godley at No. 4, have been taken out and Auchin-closs and Doty substituted, rowing No. 3 and No. 4, respectively, while Capt. Park has been shifted from No. 3 to No. 5.

FOOTBALL STAYS THE SAME.

CHANGES MADE, BUT GENERAL STYLE NOT AFFECTED.

A Measure Adopted to Prevent Stealing the Ball: Referee to Blow Whistle When Forward Progress Stops-Final Session of Rules Committee a Long One

The intercollegiate football rules committee, consisting of Walter Camp, Yale; W. T. Reid, Jr., Harvard; Prof. L. M. Dennis, Cornell; Prof. Fine, Princeton; A. A. Stagg, University of Chicago; Paul Dashiell, Annapolis, and J. C. Bell, University of Pennsylvania, discussed the playing rules for five hours in the Manhattan Hotel last Monday and the participated with the rules. day night, and then adjourned with the rules remaining pretty much the same as they have been. This means that there will be no change in the general scheme of the game for next fall, as Monday's meeting was to have taken final action on any proposed changes. Some changes were made, but they were not such as will have any great bearing on the such as will have any great bearing at the style of game, both as regards offense and defense, that was in vogue last season. In short, the game remains as it was, and all the talk about making the play more open, weak-ening the defense so as to make end runs and long dashes more frequent, and increasing the distance to be gained in four downs, has resulted in no departure from present 1 40 methods.

The suggestions involving radical changes were discussed by the committee, and whatever the sentiment was on the various points, none met with the entire approval of the committee, unanimous action being required for any change to be adopted. The rules as they now exist do not preclude the pos-sibility of open play and varying tactics by mittee, unanimous action being required for any changs to be adopted. The rules as they now exist do not preclude the possibility of open play and varying taotics by any means. There were numerous games last year in which there was no monotony and in which there were reversatility of attack and plenty of open play, showing that the rules could bring about interesting as well as a uninteresting tactics, according to the style of game adopted by the different teams.

As to what the committee did do on Monday, the most important move was to so legistate as to prevent stealing of the ball. More than once a superior team has had almost sure victory turned into defeat by an opponent grabbing the ball out of the hands of a man rushing it, and running down the field for a touchdown. The committee evidently thought it was time to put a stop to this and adopted a rule whereby the referee is instructed to blow his whistic immediately when the lorward progress of the ball has been stopped. As the ball becomes dead when the referee blows his whistic, and assist forward progress is stopped when an ofsponent wrenches it from a flow at 11 the research of the watchful.

It seems, according to one of the committeemen, that in the West the line of serimmage of this and adopted that the shall become leaves the line of serimmage of the ball, and the player must also "be outside to the player must also "be outside the player must also "be outside the player mean than and the player minage if his sadered to pround, and a note is to be inserted in the rules calling attention to the fact that such coaching is unsportsmaning the front part of the ball, and the player minage if his sadered to pround, and a note is to be inserted in the rules calling attention to the fact that such coaching is unsportsmaning the angle of the summer of the ball, and the player must also "be outside the player next him and the ween him and the players, official, the representative mentioned or an incoming with the rules of an accident to a work the tumpler' substitute shall at any time come on the field of play.

A rile was adopted permitting the official to give the approximate time remaining to play any time at the request of a captain, but the captain will not be allowed to ask for the time more than three times in the last five minutes. The restriction is aimed to prevent a captain asking about the time every few minutes in order to delay the game or gain time. Additional legislation was that no player can be outside the side lines when the ball is put in play. There was no rule in the code to this effect, though it has been an unwritten rule.

Buy White's Vaucaire Tonic and accept no substitutes on the market we would caute for White's Vaucaire Tonic and accept no substitute Tonic a desired result in a quick and sure manner.

The regatta was a very successful one, but was nothing like what the regattas down the bay used to be years ago, when thirty or more schooner yachts used to start. It showed very conclusively that racing for large boats in New York harbor does not appeal to yachtsmen. There are too many accept no substitute.

It is highly important that the Galega used in this remedy be of the very best.

White's Vaucaire Tonic rounds out shallow or shrunken parts, and makes thin, scrawny persons.

The yachts had a nice sailing breeze from the south-southwest and they were favored and third prizes were to be given if there were five starters. In spite of this, only six by the tide both going out and back, so that the races were sailed in quick time: regatta committee sent the yachts off in divisions, starting at 11:05 with the schooners.
There were four of these, Robert P. Dore-mus's Lasca, Col. David E. Austen's Wayward, Rear Commodore Haven's Quickstep and L. J. Callanan's Kiwassa. The starting line was in Gravesend Bay, and these boats had first to go to the Southwest Spit, then to the hell buoy off the point of the Hook, then to the Scotland Lightship, and back again over the same course.

They had a little windward work on the first leg, but not enough to test them thorough; on that point of sailing. The Wayvard was the first to reach the starting line, and she crossed on the port tack soon after the signal. Then came the Lasca, Kiwassa and Quick-Then came the Lasca, Kiwassa and Quickstep. The Lasca at once pulled through the lee of the Wayward and drew away from the other boats. On the way down to the Southwest Spit the Quickstep passed the

The Lasca, being the largest boat, had to allow
